TRACK HER CASE

Following every case of violence against women to justice

A live case tracking system in the Overstrand, Western Cape, that follows each report through the police, hospitals, social services and the courts until it is resolved.

The challenge

South Africa has some of the strongest laws on gender-based violence in the world. The services exist and the mandates exist. What breaks is the handover between them.

A woman reports violence to the police and her case stalls before it reaches the prosecutor. She is referred for medical care and social services never hear of her. By the time a case reaches court it is often incomplete, and it is struck from the roll for want of clarity rather than merit.

These gaps fall hardest on marginalised and underserved women, who are the most likely to need every service at once.

Our solution

The Red Dot Process, designed by STAND with Overstrand Municipality and the Overberg Violence Prevention Unit, with the support of the DG Murray Trust and AIDSFONDS, runs on the municipality's existing Citizen App. Each case receives a private reference number, so no names are recorded, and every handover is mapped across police, prosecutors, the courts, health, social development and child protection services.

A community layer of 31 trained volunteer ambassadors supports survivors on the ground and helps them follow their cases through every service. We equip them with skills and practical support, including transport to get survivors to the police, clinics, social services and court.

24 Aug 2026
System went live

3 days
Until the first case was dispatched to the police

31
Trained volunteer community ambassadors

130,000+
People living in the Overstrand

How it works

Why now

South Africa has classified gender-based violence as a national disaster and committed billions to more social workers and courts. More services mean more handovers, and every handover is a place a case can be lost. Track Her Case is live and ready to scale; your gift keeps it running while institutional funding is secured.

Long-term impact

Every case followed to its outcome shows where the system holds and where it can be strengthened. Over time this builds a district-wide evidence base that helps police, prosecutors and health and social services work as one system, so more cases reach court complete and more women see justice.

Who we are

STAND is a women-led South African organisation working where justice, health and protection meet. Since 2018 we have trained more than 500 officials and practitioners, reached more than 700 women and community members directly, trained 29 INTERPOL officers from 11 Southern African states, and managed more than R16.9 million in donor funding, under an independent Board of Directors.

What your support delivers: USD 75,000 for a full year of Track Her Case

Programme leadership and multi-sector coordination Meetings, stakeholder engagement and manual case tracking across police, health, social services and the courts	$16,069
Training and skills development Training for volunteer ambassadors, law enforcement and service providers	$15,674
Case tracing coordinator Day-to-day follow-up of every case through each handover	$8,765
Analysis and endline report Independent analysis of case outcomes and handover gaps	$6,087
Ambassador data Mobile data so volunteer ambassadors can log and follow cases	$5,661
Fieldwork and community follow-up visits Follow-up visits to survivors and communities across the Overstrand	$4,722
Survivor transport support Transport so volunteer ambassadors can get survivors to the police, clinics, social services and court	$3,500
Travel Travel across the Overstrand for coordination, follow-up and court support	$3,215
Awareness Community information on how to use the system	$2,191
Independent audit Annual audited financial statements	$1,826
Devices Phones for volunteer ambassadors	$1,217
Programme subtotal	$68,927
Platform and payment fees Online giving and transfer costs (8% of gifts)	$5,994

Total, 12 months	$74,921

Converted at USD 1 = ZAR 16.43 (19 October 2026). Our 31 community ambassadors are volunteers: the budget equips them with training, data, phones and transport support rather than stipends. Programme leadership is the largest line by design: it covers the meetings, stakeholder engagement and manual tracking that keep every service working together.

FUND THE 16 DAYS · 25 NOVEMBER TO 10 DECEMBER 2026

R150,000 keeps Track Her Case running for six weeks, through the festive season.

R150	R3,370	R23,600	R150,000
an hour	a day	a week	six weeks

The full year costs R1,230,870, everything included: about R140 an hour. From abroad, $25 or £20 becomes about R410 to R440.

Milestones to USD 75,000 by 31 March 2027: $20,000 by 30 November · $40,000 by 31 December · $52,000 by 31 January · $64,000 by 28 February · $75,000 by 31 March.